

HUGHES PLAN FOR SETTLING DEBT FAVORED BY GERMANY

Foreign Minister Says in Reichstag That Government Would Seek Loan and Turn Over Cash After Such an Inquiry as Proposed by Secretary.

WOULD GET ISSUE OUT OF QUAGMIRE

Von Rosenberg Declares Poincare's Speech at Dunkirk Sunday Was Preachment of the Doctrine of Might.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, April 15.—Foreign Minister Von Rosenberg, addressing the Reichstag this afternoon, declared the battle now in progress on the banks of the Rhine and in the Ruhr was not one for coal or wood but a fight which would determine whether the ideas of might and peace would progress or lose ground.

The Foreign Minister voiced approval of the suggestion of Secretary of State Hughes that the reparations problem be referred to a body of authoritative experts and he also indicated the conclusions on the subject reached in the result of the suggestion.

He said that the suggestion adopted by the International Chamber of Commerce at its recent Congress in Rome.

Outlines German Position. In view of the economic situation, brought by the invasion of the Ruhr and what he characterized as Poincare's avowed purpose to paralyze German economic production, von Rosenberg declared that Germany's capacity for payment by establishing the precise amount would be wholly futile, the Foreign Minister declared.

The German Government, said the Foreign Minister, had tried in various ways to get the reparations question out of the "quagmire" in which this problem was threatened with becoming stuck fast. It had also tried to help out an end to the daily increasing tension and economic chaos under which Europe was suffering.

Germany and the Entente, he said, would be represented on such a commission with equal rights.

Would Seek a Loan. If the problem were handled in this or a similar way, he repeated, Germany would be ready to seek the highest loan possible in the international financial market, and the proceeds of this loan would be available immediately as a cash installment to be turned over to the allies.

Premier Poincare's speech yesterday at Dunkirk, the Foreign Minister declared, was a preachment of might which rendered poor service toward the needed attainment of international understanding and cooperation.

The Foreign Minister declared the German Government would not accept or cooperate in any financial measure for the purpose of financing an eliminating present complications.

French-Belgian Reparation Plan to Be Put Into Tentative Form. PARIS, April 15.—The French-Belgian reparation plan, which is officially confirmed, will soon be put into tentative form in preparation for the German demand for the Allies' terms.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB TO TAKE CRIPPLED CHILDREN TO CLINIC

President Caradine Seeking Volunteers to Aid in Transporting Them to Medical Society's Building.

The names of 34 crippled children had been received today at the St. Louis Medical Society, 3525 Pine Street, in response to the Society's offer of free medical, surgical and hospital treatment for the crippled children of parents unable to pay.

Approximately half the names are those of children in rural communities. The clinic dates are April 23, 24 and 25.

As in the first survey last year, the Automobile Club of Missouri will undertake to transport the children from their homes to the clinic dates.

President J. T. Caradine of the club is asking for volunteers. Each volunteer will be assigned the definite task of going to the home of a crippled child and driving it to the Medical Society building.

It is thought that arrangements will be made separately for returning the children to their homes or to hospitals.

The Committee on Public Health and Instruction of the society, which is directing the campaign, desires to reiterate that no child will be refused treatment under this act for a fee.

Approximately six-sevenths of all trading in grain for future delivery is conducted upon the Chicago Board of Trade, it was stated, and the Government was stated that exchange instigated from asserting jurisdiction over these transactions by the ruling of the courts that the purchase and sale of many of these hedging operations, did not constitute interstate commerce.

Provisions of Trading Law Now Held to Be Valid. The Chamber-Boyer act vests control of grain trade in the Secretary of Agriculture, who is directed to impose certain conditions on boards of trade upon the fulfillment of which they are to be designated as "contract markets."

That the Board of Trade must be located at a terminal market where trading is carried on in a volume sufficient to reflect the general value of the grain and the difference in value between the various grades of grain, and where there is an inspection service approved by the Secretary of Agriculture.

That the board shall provide for the keeping of permanent records in a form prescribed by the Secretary of Agriculture, showing the details of all cash and future transactions.

That the board shall prevent the dissemination of false or misleading information about market conditions.

That the board shall prevent the manipulation of prices or the cornering of any grain.

That the board shall not exclude from membership representative of cooperative associations of producers.

Any board so penalized has the right of appeal to the courts. It is shown that any person is violating the act by seeking to manipulate the market price of grain, his trade.

Will Abide by the Law. President of Chicago Board of Trade Says. CHICAGO, April 15.—We will cheerfully conform in every particular to the law, said John J. Stream, president of the Chicago Board of Trade, today when informed of the Supreme Court decision on the grain futures trading act.

able the farm organizations to obtain seats on the grain exchange.

Went Affect Business of Exchange in St. Louis, Secretary Says. The decision of the Supreme Court upholding the grain futures trading act is not expected to affect the business of the merchants' exchange.

St. Louis was a contract market before this law became effective," Smith explained, "and the exchange will apply to the Secretary of Agriculture under this act for a license for contract trading, to cover trading in futures. These licenses are held only by markets with proper elevator and cash grain trading facilities, which St. Louis has. Next to Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City are probably the biggest centers of trades in futures."

Red Cross chapters throughout the Southwest are seeking and accepting children and rendering aid to parents in getting them to St. Louis for the clinics. In addition, 39 social agencies in small towns about Missouri are serving the children.

The clinic will offer the services of the best orthopedic surgeons, general surgeons, pediatricians and neurologists in the Medical Society's membership.

Magistrate Says There Is Suspicion He May Have Been Connected with Murder. NEW YORK, April 15.—Albert Guimaraes, friend of Dorothy Keenan, "Broadway butterfly" who was killed in a apartment with chloroform, was locked up in Tombs prison this afternoon. He was held in default of $2500 bail on the charge of violating the Sullivan anti-bribe act.

A pistol was found in his possession when the police began to search him regarding his friendship with Miss Keenan.

Guimaraes had been questioned several times in connection with the girl's death. He denied knowledge of it and said that he was in a hotel when Miss Keenan was chloroformed.

Magistrate Goodman, in holding Guimaraes, said, "The reason I'm holding him is because there was a murder. There is some suspicion that this defendant may have been connected with this murder."

RUTHENBERG GOES ON TRIAL IN SECOND OF MICHIGAN CASES

Jury Being Selected in Berrien County Circuit Court to Try Ohioan on Criminal Syndicalism Charge.

By the Associated Press. ST. JOSEPH, Mo., April 15.—Selection of a jury to try Charles H. Ruthenberg of Cleveland, charged with criminal syndicalism, began in Berrien County Circuit Court today.

Ruthenberg is the second man to go on trial as a result of attending the second national communist party convention held in the sand hills near here last August. A jury in the case of William Z. Foster disappeared after trying 35 ballots. There were no jurors on the panel called to the jury box today.

Ruthenberg is being defended by Frank N. Walters, of New York, and Washington and Humphrey & Co., of Benton Harbor, assisted by E. Ferguson, an attorney and local leader of Chicago, who was convicted in New York under a similar charge.

Ruthenberg was charged with assembling with an organization advocating illegal political action for bringing about social and political reform.

At the trial of Foster, the defense, as well as Ruthenberg, a defense lawyer, contended the communist party had been disbanded. The State of Michigan maintained that the party still is in existence.

On April 17, the day after Foster's trial ended with a deadlock jury trial after two days of deliberation, it has been learned here, 25 jurors of the Communist party met in New York and voted to disband the party organization, and make the Workers party the Communist organization in America whenever the party decides to make the change.

Ruthenberg, while on the stand, testified to his liberal affiliations. He said he had been a Socialist organizer for a number of years.

ST. LOUIS U. HIGH SCHOOL GIFT OF MRS. ANNA BACKER

Widow of George H. Backer, Who Owned String of Flour Mills, Is the Donor of $500,000.

BUILDING TO BE MEMORIAL TO HIS Archbishop Glennon in Address Refers to Co-Education as "A Kind of Coarse Sublimation."

Mrs. Anna Backer of 3158 W. Webster place is the donor of $500,000, with which the new building of St. Louis University High School, built on Oaklawn avenue near Kings highway, will be financed.

The gift is said to represent approximately the entire fortune of Mrs. Backer. Friends acquainted with her neighbors were unaware she possessed so large a sum.

The family has never owned an automobile. Mrs. Backer for many years has been a devoted member of the Xavier (College) Church of St. Louis.

Mrs. Theresa Kulage of 10,332 E. Western Drive, who accompanied Mrs. Backer to yesterday's ceremony when the corner stone of the new building was laid, said the identity of the donor declined.

Backer graduated from the University 34 years ago. His wife was a memorial to him and to her husband's family in a new building at St. Louis Academy.

The institution will continue to be popular name, St. Louis University High School, though its dedication is to the Archdiocese of St. Louis, established in 1915. Backer's daughter, a degree of doctor of arts was one of the degrees conferred in the corner stone.

Donor Anonymous for Year. Mrs. Backer, who had remained anonymous for a year, said she was present yesterday at the laying of the corner stone of the new building.

Mrs. Backer, with Mrs. Kulage, said in reserved places, directly in front of the corner stone and in the center of the building.

He referred to co-education as a kind of "coarse sublimation." He said it was important because it was for the advancement of the race.

Boys, he said, must be to learn realities and the fundaments of truth and courage, and can be better instructed by men.

"I have not the courage to put to the test the unbelief of the laity," the Archbishop said. "They are excellent people in their own way, but they have given great consideration to work of education. But they give, as men, in a convincing way, the fundamental truths should be at the foundation of a boy's character. Or they may be the ethics, yet fall convicted to lead the boy up to full realization of them."

The Archbishop referred to the example which the present generation is holding up to the youth.

"It has shown the way to the future," he said, "to destruction. It is constantly repeating what economic crises are suggesting. We must turn to our youth and tell them that the future is not in the hands of the youth, but in the hands of the old."

The Rev. P. P. Crane, pastor of Holy Name Church, also spoke, stating the value of Mrs. Backer's gift as contributing to the education of boys in the most critical time of their lives.

A new school building will hold for 1200 pupils and will be ready for classes in the autumn.

RUNS TO STREET IN FRIENDLY SCUFFLE, KILLED BY TRUCK

Rudolph Rauth Hit by Machine Early Sunday—Driver Turns Out Lights and Speeds Away.

Rudolph Rauth, 25 years old, of 3150A South Compton avenue, was struck and killed by a Ford truck at 1:30 a. m. yesterday in front of 3600 South Broadway. The driver of the car turned off the lights and sped away after the accident.

A truck believed to be that which struck Rauth was found by deputies of Constable William Knight of Carondelet Township, St. Louis County, yesterday afternoon, in the rear of a barn five blocks from the scene of the accident. The truck is owned by N. A. Singer of Lemay Ferry road, and had been reported stolen twice that night, the second theft being reported to the Constable's office a few minutes after the accident.

An inquest was held last night in an undertaking establishment at 714 South Broadway, the coroner's jury returning a verdict that Rauth died of a broken neck, after being hit by an automobile, driven by parties unknown.

Rauth and three companions, W. McKinley Stoop, of 2149 Oregon avenue; H. A. Henne and George Hart, of the Aberdeen Hotel, were walking north on the west side of Broadway, after leaving a dance hall in the 3600 block on South Broadway, when the accident occurred. Rauth's companions testified that Rauth ran into the street, in the course of a friendly scuffle, and was struck by the truck which, they said, was being driven south on Broadway at a high speed. They declared no warning signal was sounded.

They were unable to identify the truck found yesterday afternoon, but thought it was the machine that struck Rauth. The headlight on the left side of the truck was broken and the left fender bent.

At the Constable's office it was said Singer reported the first theft of the truck at 9:10 Saturday night, and it was found about an hour later, one block from the point where it was stolen. Singer drove the truck to his home. The second theft was reported to the Constable's office a few minutes after the time of the accident, deputies said.

Boy Suffers Fractured Leg When Hit by Auto.

Stanley Bonick, 2 years old, 1212 North Eleventh street, suffered a compound fracture of the right leg and a possible skull fracture at 5:40 p. m. yesterday when struck by an automobile in the alley at the rear of his home. Clarence Naumann, 1424 North Eleventh street, driver, told the police the boy darted out from a back yard into the path of his machine.

Injuries to Joseph Italiano, 19, of 2133 Cooper street, and Louis Barra, 19, of 813 Patterson avenue, resulted at 7:15 p. m. from a collision between an automobile driven by Italian and a taxicab at Shaw and Edwards streets. Barra, who was riding with Italiano, suffered a possible fracture of the skull and abrasions and Italiano suffered numerous lacerations.

Mrs. Grace Christian, 23, a clerk at Koch Hospital, suffered severe lacerations and possible internal injuries at 9 p. m. in a collision at Blow street and Michigan avenue.

Three persons were slightly injured at 4 p. m. when an automobile driven by Patrolman James O'Gorman, 49, of 4743 Hammett street, collided with a service car driven by Ernest Wollard of 1304 Ethel avenue, St. Louis County, at Tower Grove and Gibson avenues. O'Gorman, his wife Mary, and daughter, Catherine, suffered cuts and bruises.

Boy Injured Internally.

Edward Seibel, 14, of 3228A Howard street, was taken to city hospital last night from his home and pronounced suffering from serious internal injuries. He was struck Saturday by the fender of an automobile driven by Charles Riedweg of 2633A Lerman avenue, in front of 220 North Nineteenth street, when he ran into the street from between two parked automobiles. Riedweg took him to city hospital and doctors said he had suffered an abrasion of the abdomen. The boy was considered not seriously hurt and was taken home by his father. He became worse and a second examination disclosed more serious injury. Mrs. Amanda Paller, 41, of 1409 Menard street, suffered lacerations of the head, face and hands at 4:25 a. m. when an automobile in which she was riding with her son, Joseph, ran into a telephone pole at Seventh and Carroll streets.

Peeling Off the Years From the Aging Face

It should be possible for a woman of 45 to make herself look not a day over 25. Almost any woman of 20 can look 25. Modern science has achieved in ordinary mortals what was a medium that accomplished the seemingly impossible. Just as a withering rose can be made to bud young and beautiful again by peeling off the faded outer petals, so the face will retain its youthful appearance if the dead outline is removed as fast as it appears, allowing the new, fresh skin underneath to develop like a bud breaking into flower. And that is what is accomplished by actual skin peeling—peeling off the aging surface skin—gently, gradually, harmlessly. If you've never tried this remarkable method, you'll find an entire new world of beauty and youth when you try it. See the ad in this issue.

The Right Way to Wash Clothes

1900 Cataract

The Gold Medal Washer

BUILT to do real work—will handle at one load 15 pounds of dry clothes, and wash them quicker and cleaner, with less wear and tear than any other domestic Washing Machine. This is a broad statement, but you can verify it yourself by asking any of the thousands of women who are using the 1900 Cataract.

Heats the water right in the tub. Ask for demonstration.

Fashiongrams From Paris

McCall Pattern 3085

ROWS of wide tucks emphasize the bouffancy of the rather wide skirt in this charming summer frock and are repeated in the short sleeves.

One of the new printed voiles was used for the model sketched, but the style is equally well adapted to printed silks, ginghams or organdies.

Made from McCall Printed Pattern 3085, 45c.

Crackers and Cakes

Baked in our own Sunlit Bakery and sold in our stores at a saving of from 4 to 10¢ a pound

In supplying Kroger Stores with these dainties, the Kroger idea—to sell absolutely the finest merchandise at prices that greatly overshadow all competition—is attained in its fullest sense. No commercial or substitute ingredients are used. They are so delicious because creamery butter, fresh eggs, pure milk, laboratory tested flour, etc., are used, combined with a rare artistry in cake making. These low prices are maintained thru low overhead costs, the elimination of unnecessary frills in packing and our scientific system of merchandising. Won't you try a pound?

Aspirin
Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Genuine BAYER

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for:

Colds Headache Toothache Lumbago Earache Rheumatism Neuralgia Pain, Pain

Accept "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" only. Each unbroken package contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Drugists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monocetate-diol of Salicylic acid.

During 1933 the Post-Dispatch printed 6554 Agents Wanted advertisement more than the THREE other St. Louis newspapers combined.

AMERICAN HISTORY FOR CHILDREN

The Whole of the Grant Administration Was a Story of Graft, Mismanagement and Political Scandal.

A Transcontinental Locomotive.

By HENDRIK VAN LOON,
Author of "The Story of Mankind."

THE next President of the United States, after Andrew Johnson, was that popular hero of the late war, General Ulysses Simpson Grant, who held office from 1869 to 1877. The nation was to find out later that military training and war medals do not necessarily develop presidential qualities in a man, but in 1869, Grant was the idol of the nation. He was honest, and he tried to do his best, but he was continually being hoodwinked by unscrupulous and clever schemers, and his whole administration is a story of graft, mismanagement and political scandal.

When talking of the war, we mentioned the indignation felt in the North over England's marked sympathy for the South, which had even led her into the indiscretion of fitting out a couple of cruisers for the Confederate navy. A court of arbitration met in Geneva, in the winter of 1871-72, to discuss what reparation England should make to the United States for this breach of neutrality. Five delegates were appointed to this small court, one by the United States, one by England, and one each by Italy, Switzerland and Brazil. The result of their deliberations was that England was ordered to pay the United States an indemnity of $15,000,000. This verdict was carried by a vote of four to one, the dissenting voice being that of the English representative.

That you may realize something of the political corruption during Grant's administration, I shall mention two or three cases. There were William Tweed, political boss of New York, and his friends, who were known as the "Tweed Ring." In a few years, they managed to cheat the New York City taxpayers out of no less than $160,000,000. Among other expenditures, Mr. Tweed sunk $8,000,000 in a courthouse, which was supposed to cost no more than $250,000. Then there was a supervisor of internal revenue, who was caught in the act of defrauding the Government of $1,000,000 yearly taxes annually, while the Secretary of War was convicted of receiving an annual bribe of several thousand dollars from an Indian agent at Fort Sill, who evidently found his job worth holding on to. In 1869, two clever speculators, Jay Gould and James Fiske, persuaded the President to hold up the regular issues of gold, made by the United States Treasury, for a short time. They then proceeded to corner the gold market, which forced many respectable merchants into bankruptcy, and turned the New York Stock Exchange upside down. This affair is known as "Black Friday" because it was on a Friday when the market broke.

In 1873 occurred one of the worst business panics ever suffered by this country. It was just when the big transcontinental railroads were being built, and the banking house of Jay Cooke was overloaded with Northern Pacific bonds. The European market closed down, and Mr. Cooke, unable to get rid of his bonds, was forced into bankruptcy. This was the signal for a series of failures all over the country. All railroad construction stopped for the time being no one could get a job, no one had money enough to buy anything, and consequently no one could sell anything. All industry was at a standstill and it was five or six years before the return of prosperity.

It also was during Grant's administration that the Chicago fire occurred, in 1871, while in 1876 the first great exhibition or world's fair in this country was held in Philadelphia, to celebrate the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

Board Carries Out Threat to Act Under State Law—Warrant for E. J. Deffrey.

The threat of the Police Board to prosecute under a State statute any policeman who becomes intoxicated, was carried out for the first time today, when a warrant was obtained against Edward J. Deffrey, a probationary patrolman of the Magnolia Avenue Station, charging him with being drunk while on duty.

The offense charged is a violation of section 9174 of the Missouri statutes, and is punishable by a $50 fine, or any period of imprisonment up to six months in jail, or both.

Police Capt. Chrismer, who came to the warrant, was notified Saturday afternoon that a drunken policeman was at Grand boulevard and Connecticut street. He went there and arrested Deffrey, who has been on the force since Feb. 1. Deffrey was held in a cell seven hours, when bond was furnished for him. In reply to the captain's demand for an explanation, Deffrey denied that he was intoxicated. He was suspended from the force.

In the past, policemen have been suspended and dropped from the force for drunkenness, but have not been prosecuted.

VAN HELMONT, CRAZY ALCHEMIST

Although no one has ever erected a statue to him, Van Helmont, the crazy alchemist of the Sixteenth Century, was the discoverer of carbonic acid gas, upon which our entire soda water and soft drink industry is based. Two centuries later, a clergyman, aptly named Priestley, made the first glass of soda water. A hundred and fifty years later, Anheuser-Busch capped the climax with the production of a rare and mellow Ginger Ale, now obtainable wherever quality counts.

TESTIFIES RUNGE SAID HE WAS SHOT IN CROWE FLAT

Detective, at Inquest, Quotes Egan Gang Member as Telling Him Where He Got Two Wounds.

RUNGE REFUSES TO ANSWER QUESTION

On Advice of Attorney, He Gives No Testimony About Killing of "Lucky Bill" Last Week.

When the Coroner's inquest into the killing of "Lucky Bill" Crowe, gangster, was resumed today, Elmer Runge, member of the "Egan's Rats" gang, suspected by the police of having been implicated in the murder, refused to testify.

"Were you in Crowe's flat at 1529A Chouteau avenue last Wednesday night when he was shot?" Runge was asked.

Verne R. G. Lacy, former Assistant Circuit Attorney, who said he represented several of the witnesses, advised Runge not to answer, and the witness maintained silence.

After other witnesses, including Mrs. Runge, Helen O'Toole and John and Pat Crowe, brothers of the murdered man, had followed the example of Runge and refused to testify, the inquest was continued until Saturday.

Leodore Londe, another member of the Egan gang, was arrested this afternoon and ordered held for bond as a witness in the case.

The witnesses were released on $10,000 bonds.

Runge and his wife were arrested this morning at the home of Runge's mother, 729 North Fourth street. Runge had a mark on his chest which he admitted had been made by a slinging bullet and a laceration on his left thumb which he also admitted was the result of a bullet.

"He told me that he was at Crowe's flat when Crowe was killed," testified Detective Arohey of the Police homicide squad, "and he told me he was shot twice. He refused to give me any further information."

Runge's Raincoat in Room.

Detectives, as has been told, had been seeking Runge and his wife since the day following the Crowe murder, when Runge's raincoat and his wife's caps were found in the room in which Crowe was shot. Runge's wounds, the police say, bear out the theory that Crowe and Runge, former pals, had fallen out.

To hear out their contention that Eugene Harris also was wounded at the time Crowe and Runge were shot, detectives exhibited at the inquest a red-stained fur-trimmed coat found in the Crowe flat which matches a skirt worn by Helen O'Toole, Harris' sweetheart.

Harris was taken to City Hospital from a doctor's office about an hour after Crowe had been killed. He had a bullet wound in the hip which, he said, had been inflicted by an unidentified man at Nineteenth and Chestnut streets.

Later the O'Toole woman visited Harris at the hospital. She said she was with him in an automobile when he was shot and also said the shooting occurred at Nineteenth and Chestnut streets.

Police Theory of Killing.

Police believe the slaying of "Lucky Bill" had its inception in disagreement over division of $1545 payroll money of the St. Louis Post-Advertising Co., stolen March 21.

Following that robbery, which occurred at the company's office, 2300 Olive street, the robbers escaped in an automobile. "Lucky Bill" Crowe later was arrested in a pet shop at Jefferson avenue and Olive street, where he was pretending to be employed as clerk. Witnesses of the robbery could not identify him and he later was released.

OPPOSES REMOVAL OF STATUE

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Suggestions from unofficial sources that the statue of Andrew Jackson, opposite the White House in Lafayette Square, should be removed on the ground that it is not artistic have been taken up by Senator McKellar of Tennessee, in a letter to President Harding, urging him not to give his approval to such a proposal.

"The sentiment of the American people is overwhelmingly against the desecration of any of its monuments to any of its heroes," McKellar said in his letter.

In reply to a letter written April 15, the Secretary of the National Association of Builders, J. J. McMahen, has declined to call a general conference of construction industry representatives to discuss the unprecedented boom now sweeping the country. He said that the increased cost of construction is a result of the war and that the industry should be able to handle it on its own.

As told exclusively in the Dispatch last Friday, Secretary McMahen declined to call the conference at the request of the National Association of Builders, which had formulated a program which would have been a blow to the industry. He said that the industry should be able to handle it on its own.

WHERE politics is life! A sea of humanity! In this remarkable photograph, taken at Berlin, Germany, recently, are to be seen the scores of thousands of persons who were massed in front of the Reichstag to hear speakers denounce the occupation of the Ruhr and the alleged French oppressions and "murders" at Essen. Possibly in no other country in the world could such a huge crowd turn out for a political demonstration as seen here, where the cry was, "Hin aus mit den Franzosen von der Ruhr!" (Out with the French from the Ruhr!)

FRANCE TO "CARRY ON" IN RUHR UNTIL PEACE IS WON, POINCARE SAYS, AT DUNKIRK

Premier Declares Proof Has Been Found That Germany Could Have Made the Coal Deliveries Required of Her.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, April 16.—Reaffirming France's intention to withdraw from the newly occupied territory only as Germany makes her reparation payments, Premier Poincare, in his Dunkirk speech yesterday, asserted that three months in the Ruhr had convinced France of Germany's ability to meet her coal deliveries.

The address delivered at the dedication of a monument to Dunkirk's 1940 war dead, contained a vigorous renewal of France's determination to "carry on" to win "the peace" as she had bent every effort to win the war.

Three months in the Ruhr, the Premier said, had convinced France that Germany could have made the coal deliveries required of her, for it was evident that the Reich was able to get along without the Ruhr coal.

"We have proof that she could have paid us in foreign exchange," he added, "as she now spends large sums abroad."

The occupation had also brought to light, the Premier asserted, the military organizations which the Reich concealed, as in Upper Silesia, under the innocuous name of "security police."

"Germany will wait in vain for a single moment of weakness on our part," said the Premier. "France will finish what she has begun—finish it patiently. France will stand firm until the end."

Poincare renewed the Government's determination to remain with Belgium in the Ruhr until Germany paid as she described it, "the guarantee that Germany did not wish to give us, that certain of our allies in the best faith in the world thought unnecessary, but seemed to us indispensable."

France had lived four years with "the single thought of winning the war," the Premier said. "Today it is our duty to win the peace. We have sworn to our dead not to lose the victory we bought so dearly, and before this monument you have erected here to them we once again renew that solemn oath."

"France now has her hand on what Mr. Bonar Law so aptly called 'Germany's jugular vein,'" said Poincare. "We do not think of strangling anyone; our only ambition is to be paid and to save ourselves from financial disaster."

"Charges of imperialism against France he characterized as puerile, foolish and insane."

Poincare's Remarks Intended for British, Berlin Papers Think.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, April 16.—Premier Poincare's remarks at Dunkirk were intended primarily for English consumption, the Berlin newspapers think, yet they cannot understand why such a new stimulus was regarded as necessary in view of the fact that Louis Loucheur was reported to have found British sentiment on Ruhr question swinging toward France.

"If however, the French Premier's speech was intended to furnish a cue for the German Government and the Reichstag in this week's debate on the foreign policy," says Lohr, "the reply which is to be immediately given will spell a new disappointment for him."

The newspaper adds that Germany is determined and is in a position to continue her passive resistance campaign, for a long time if necessary.

It is now going on at a cost of one and a half times normal, with, therefore, greatly increased expenditures on the part of builders.

This, he said, is the only way to get the thousands of contractors as well as "buyers" who are putting up buildings, and a "buyers' strike" is feared unless a check is placed on the unbridled building.

The rules presented by Couzens, he explains to the Secretary, were formulated at a meeting held Friday at Washington by representatives of the building contractors, cement and lumber interests.

The text of his letter, aside from that already given, follows, in part, delineating further causes why the conference should be held in the immediate future and an attempt to go beyond some such speed results in inflation.

"Every inflation causes a false high cost which is a taxable and permanent burden on the American people as distinguished from the action in cost of expendable materials."

"Periods of inflation are always followed by periods of depression with the net result of no progress in making up the needed deficiency as later illustrated."

Nothing but industrial depression and general distress can result from a tendency to the conditions that now prevail.

CANCELLATION OF LANSING-ISHLI AGREEMENT IS ANNOUNCED

Formal Action by the State Department—Exchange of Notes Made Public.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 16.—Cancellation of the Lansing-Ishli agreement between the United States and Japan was formally announced by the State Department yesterday in a statement making public an exchange of notes between Secretary Hughes and Mamoru Hamahara, the Japanese Ambassador. The communication, dated April 14 and formally confirming the accord reached to cancel the agreement, were made public simultaneously, the department explained, in an identical statement issued by the Japanese Foreign Office in Tokyo.

The exchange of notes set forth that in the light of the understanding arrived at by the Washington conference on the limitation of armaments, dated April 14 and formally confirmed by the Japanese Ambassador, the Japanese Government had decided to cancel the construction program for some 260 per cent of normal at a cost of approximately 150 per cent of today. This situation, it was stated, should be a condition of inflation which, if not checked, can only result in collapse.

SOVIET MINISTER OF JUSTICE DEFENDS TRIAL OF CLERGY

Open Counter-Revolutionary Activities of Catholic Prelates Forced Raising of the Sword, Says Kursky.

By the Associated Press.
MOSCOW, April 16.—In connection with the recent trial of the Roman Catholic Archbishop Zepliak and the forthcoming trial of the most Rev. Dr. Tikhon, former patriarch of all Russia, Commissar of Justice Kursky yesterday made to the Associated Press the following statement:

"The legal position of the church in Soviet Russia, and its allied republics is best illustrated by the fundamental regulations fixed by the decree of separation of church and state in 1918. According to this, every citizen, first, may profess any religion or none at all; second, when carrying out of religious rites does not interfere with public order and the rights of citizens, free performance of them is guaranteed. Third, no church society has the right to own property; fourth, all property belonging to church societies in Russia is declared to be national property, but buildings and articles of service are handed over to religious societies for free use."

These regulations, said M. Kursky, by virtue of law, apparently apply to all citizens and religious societies of various creeds without exception. Kursky added that the decree itself, as well as all instructions to the local authorities, "always conveyed the idea of faith and taking of measures so as not to offend religious feelings."

But such an attitude toward the church, the Commissar of Justice continued, "placing it in a condition of freedom while depriving the clergy of certain national welfare, called forth at first a hidden and afterwards an open struggle of the church and hierarchy against the Government. Dr. Tikhon and Archbishop Zepliak, leaders respectively of the Orthodox and Catholic churches, carried on a campaign against the Government since 1918 which the recent trial revealed, as having the character of state treason and connection with the Soviet Republic being the Soviet Republic."

The open counter-revolutionary activities of the higher clergy, however, compelled the Government to raise the sword of justice, M. Kursky added, regarding church treason upon the heads of the criminals. It had not for a moment infringed the freedom of faith guaranteed by the decree. With regard to the criticism in connection with the trial of the Catholic priest, M. Kursky said:

Guided by Soviet Laws.

"The Russian courts were acting only according to Soviet laws, and no campaign by the foreign bourgeoisie press could change the sentences and the regulations of the supreme institution of the Soviet Republic."

The trial of Dr. Tikhon will begin April 22. "His name has been connected with the struggle of the higher clergy of the Orthodox Church against the Soviet regime throughout the entire five years since the October revolution."

"Having been elected patriarch, Dr. Tikhon immediately became leader of the church counter-revolution. Not only did he proclaim anathema on the Soviet Government and its leaders, but, as has now been ascertained, he supported personally and through his subordinate, the revolutionary groups, including Gen. Denikin and others."

Enumerating Dr. Tikhon's alleged various activities against the Soviet Government, M. Kursky said his "open and undisguised" support of the counter-revolutionary groups, which resulted in bloodshed at many places.

At the forthcoming trial of Dr. Tikhon there will be brought to light, according to M. Kursky, all particulars concerning the alleged activities of the prelate for the retention of church property and against the de-

COUZENS AGAIN ATTACKS MANAGEMENT OF ROADS

Michigan Senator Cites Figures Showing Great Increase in Bad Order Engines.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, April 16.—Retelling charges that the condition of railroad equipment showed incompetent management, Senator Couzens, Republican, of Michigan, in a statement, quoted figures yesterday to show that modern locomotives were not efficiently used and that in recent years there had been a great increase in bad-order cars and engines.

In a previous statement, Couzens said, he had asserted that the practice of railroad management was to cut wages or raise rates, instead of endeavoring to find other means of cutting costs. The railroads replied, he said, that they had reduced expenses in 1922 more than a billion dollars and that they averaged only 1,645,237 employees in 1922, as against 2,012,600 in 1920, although traffic was not greatly below the volume of 1922.

"Now, let us see," said the Michigan Senator, "how deceptive this statement is. The Interstate Commerce Commission figures show that the 1922 traffic was approximately 19 per cent less than in 1920 and you will observe that the difference in the number of employees was approximately 19 per cent, so where is that 'flaunted efficiency'?"

The Bureau of Railway Economics, Couzens said, had shown that from 1920 to 1922 there was a considerable decrease in the number of miles traveled by each car per day, a decrease in the tons carried by each car, a decrease in net tons per train, an increase in bad-order cars of 89.2 per cent and an increase of bad-order freight cars of 100 per cent.

If the railroads had cut more than a billion dollars from annual costs of operations, Couzens said, the Interstate Commerce Commission should see that the public is benefited by reduced transportation charges.

GERMAN PEOPLE ARE BEING FED UP ON ABSURDITIES, MAXIMILIAN HARDIN SAYS

Latest Official Propaganda Promises Industrial Combine of Germany, France and Britain Against U. S. in Steel Trade.

By MAXIMILIAN HARDIN.
BERLIN, April 16.—The German people are being fed up on absurdities. The governing officials refuse to be frank. They will not tell the truth. The inevitable result is misunderstanding at home which allows the present cabinet to drift along. Their claim that other countries disapprove the action of France in the Ruhr because it is interfering with them getting reparations, payments has the effect of stiffening the resistance there.

The same people who only yesterday prayed, "God punish England," today are praying that life will "save" England instead of thinking "whether a state with a deficit of seven thousand billions, paper currency can afford a vigorous policy to regain lost prestige. The German public is intoxicated with the calculations of damages France is supposed to be suffering through illegal occupation of our territory and expects a necessary miracle to eventuate which will extricate them from all their troubles."

Lloyd George Now Hero.

Yesterday it was Lloyd George who was a hero in their minds. Today Lloyd George, only a short time ago the most bitterly hated of men, has taken that position as the result of his opposition to the French program voiced in the House of Commons and by his various speeches.

But in America most of the people are not so easily won over. They are not so easily won over by the result of business jealousy and political greed and are "forced on the Kaiser and his peaceful generals, listening to their fearful Christian sentiments."

Alliance Against America.

Prophet Schuler sees the only salvation for the world in an alliance between Germany, France and Great Britain, would unite against the United States and complete an economic barrier against dollar rule in Europe.

"I would not trouble you with reciting such silly nonsense were it not that serious journals of the German press, whose power in the past has been potent, give it prominence and it has been accepted by millions who still are in the dark regarding the political movement of the government. For them the war was the result of business jealousy and political greed and was 'forced on the Kaiser and his peaceful generals, listening to their fearful Christian sentiments.'"

CITY COSTS DISCLOSED BY RESEARCH BUREAU HEAD

Paul Bakewell Jr. Says $60,000 a Year Could Be Saved on Cleaning Buildings.

Recommendations for changes in the method of preparing the city budget and means of reducing city expenditures, presented recently to city officials by the Municipal Bureau of Research, were discussed by Paul Bakewell Jr., chairman of the Governing Committee of the bureau, yesterday afternoon, before the "Fourth World Improvement and Taxpayers' Association," at Hotel Hamilton, Broadway and Chippewa street.

More publicity to the items in the budget was urged by Bakewell, so citizens would have an opportunity to appear before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to protest any expenditure to which they objected. The bureau had urged public hearings be held after all budget estimates are in, and has asked that printed copies of the tentative budget be made available to citizens for at least a month before the budget is approved in its final form.

More than $20,000 a month is expended in maintaining and cleaning the City Hall and Municipal Courts Building, Bakewell said, and he declared this could be reduced $60,000 a year without altering the present wage scale.

The Elsa Brandstrom Relief Committee, organized after a meeting at Sheldon Memorial, Saturday night, which was addressed by Miss Brandstrom, today announced donations totaling $1500 for aid of German widows and orphans of soldiers who died in Siberian prison camps. A number of pledges of $24, sufficient to support one child a year, have been received.

Miss Brandstrom has been nominated by Sweden for the Nobel Peace Prize for her work in Siberian prison camps during the war. She will leave St. Louis today for Pittsburgh.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—Retelling charges that the condition of railroad equipment showed incompetent management, Senator Couzens, Republican, of Michigan, in a statement, quoted figures yesterday to show that modern locomotives were not efficiently used and that in recent years there had been a great increase in bad-order cars and engines.

In a previous statement, Couzens said, he had asserted that the practice of railroad management was to cut wages or raise rates, instead of endeavoring to find other means of cutting costs. The railroads replied, he said, that they had reduced expenses in 1922 more than a billion dollars and that they averaged only 1,645,237 employees in 1922, as against 2,012,600 in 1920, although traffic was not greatly below the volume of 1922.

"Now, let us see," said the Michigan Senator, "how deceptive this statement is. The Interstate Commerce Commission figures show that the 1922 traffic was approximately 19 per cent less than in 1920 and you will observe that the difference in the number of employees was approximately 19 per cent, so where is that 'flaunted efficiency'?"

The Bureau of Railway Economics, Couzens said, had shown that from 1920 to 1922 there was a considerable decrease in the number of miles traveled by each car per day, a decrease in the tons carried by each car, a decrease in net tons per train, an increase in bad-order cars of 89.2 per cent and an increase of bad-order freight cars of 100 per cent.

If the railroads had cut more than a billion dollars from annual costs of operations, Couzens said, the Interstate Commerce Commission should see that the public is benefited by reduced transportation charges.

GERMAN PEOPLE ARE BEING FED UP ON ABSURDITIES, MAXIMILIAN HARDIN SAYS

Latest Official Propaganda Promises Industrial Combine of Germany, France and Britain Against U. S. in Steel Trade.

By MAXIMILIAN HARDIN.
BERLIN, April 16.—The German people are being fed up on absurdities. The governing officials refuse to be frank. They will not tell the truth. The inevitable result is misunderstanding at home which allows the present cabinet to drift along. Their claim that other countries disapprove the action of France in the Ruhr because it is interfering with them getting reparations, payments has the effect of stiffening the resistance there.

The same people who only yesterday prayed, "God punish England," today are praying that life will "save" England instead of thinking "whether a state with a deficit of seven thousand billions, paper currency can afford a vigorous policy to regain lost prestige. The German public is intoxicated with the calculations of damages France is supposed to be suffering through illegal occupation of our territory and expects a necessary miracle to eventuate which will extricate them from all their troubles."

CITY COSTS DISCLOSED BY RESEARCH BUREAU HEAD

Paul Bakewell Jr. Says $60,000 a Year Could Be Saved on Cleaning Buildings.

Recommendations for changes in the method of preparing the city budget and means of reducing city expenditures, presented recently to city officials by the Municipal Bureau of Research, were discussed by Paul Bakewell Jr., chairman of the Governing Committee of the bureau, yesterday afternoon, before the "Fourth World Improvement and Taxpayers' Association," at Hotel Hamilton, Broadway and Chippewa street.

More publicity to the items in the budget was urged by Bakewell, so citizens would have an opportunity to appear before the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to protest any expenditure to which they objected. The bureau had urged public hearings be held after all budget estimates are in, and has asked that printed copies of the tentative budget be made available to citizens for at least a month before the budget is approved in its final form.

More than $20,000 a month is expended in maintaining and cleaning the City Hall and Municipal Courts Building, Bakewell said, and he declared this could be reduced $60,000 a year without altering the present wage scale.

"FIRST YEAR" COMEDY OF CONNUBIAL BATTLE

Frank Craven, Playwright, Ticks Risibilities of Big Audience.

BY RICHARD L. STOKES.
ONLY military men and criminal defectors according to Thorstein Bunde, live constantly in a bellicose state of mind. That young married couples belong also to the class of the habitually belligerent is the theme of "The First Year" in which Frank Craven appears this week at the American as playwright and leading actor. Not that his comedy is a profound study in the continental vein of a ferocious matrimony. Had it been so, it would probably never have reached production on the American stage, and certainly would not have held the boards since October, 1926.

But in its own way "The First Year" is an honorable and keenly amusing essay in American genre comedy, and possesses, within its limits the merit of such veracity, both in writing and acting, that the spectator has an impression not of a laughing action on a stage, but of a real life from which one wall happens to have been removed.

Grace Livingston, daughter of a middle-class family in Reading, Pa., under age of two suitors. Dick Loring is handsome and bears about him the dashing glamor of his profession as engineer, which has ferried him to such romantic spots as Arizona, Washington State and British Columbia. Thomas Tucker, the hemlock young man in Reading, is dependably and contentedly employed in the retail store business.

What is beauty, represented by a handsome spouse and perhaps handsome children, that it should prevail over security? Grace is aware that she will never find a cause to be jealous of Tommy. He is also constitutionally "docile" and the price of an obedient husband is beyond rubies. So it is Tommy who is snatched up into matrimony—on the condition that he will have her cake and eat it, too. Shy and pedestrian Tommy must turn into an adventurer, and bear her into the start of life in Reading.

In the second act they have been married 11 months, and are living in a shabby flat in Joplin, Mo. Tommy thought of this mining metropolis because he knew a man who lived there. He soon learns he is engaged to one of those meretricious swindlers which are the duty of respectable husbands. Having learned confidentially that a railroad is about to be built through the town, Tommy, who has his interest in public utility, decides to acquire the property, which he proposes to sell to the corporation.

How the Tuckers to clinch the deal, give a dinner for the purchasing agent and his wife, formerly a vaudeville actress; how the old reliable cook defers because of an attack of the "flu"; and how the shrewish daughter, a laundress, to substitute, how the synthetic gin cocktails bring a shriek of "Poison!" from the ex-actress; how the dicker is wrecked, through Grace's efforts to aid her husband and also the intervention of Dick Loring, who chances in; and how Grace and her husband, exploded in the conundrum of the "flu," and the way to brotherhood which ends in her flight to mother and Reading—all these and other tragic-comedies are revealed in an laughable scene as has been through an audience.

Redragged Hero.
The third act in "The First Year" is not under way until there is a rough and tumble fight in the parlor between Tommy and Dick. No, the husband does not trounce his rival in Homeric style. In fact, Tommy is getting the worst of it when Grace runs to his aid, and instead of knocking her husband down, she is knocked down herself.

Among the characters, five are survivors from the original company. These are Frank Craven, a Tommy; Tim Murphy, as Dr. Anderson; Grace's uncle, Lyster Chambers, as Dick; Lyle Borden, as Hattie, the shrewish maid; and Marcelita Edmond as the slanging wife of the purchasing agent. Later recruits are Alice Owens, as Grace; James Bradbury, as her father, Jane Ellison, as her mother; and Hale Vorrester as Mr. Barker.

Craven's portrait is authentic to the last gesture, phrase and expression of face, especially graphic in the picture of the sold matrimonial ruin, Mr. Loring. And Murphy's likeness of a wise and small-town doctor. Miss Bennett Hattie is a real-life character, and Miss Edmond's Mrs. Barker is a lively miniature. A large audience last night chuckled and applauded from the audience's rise to its feet.

CHAPLIN'S "PILGRIM" DARING AND FUNNY

Theodore Roberts a Hit in "Grumpy." Vera Gordon in Mother Role—Milton Sills in Emotional Drama.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN'S much-discussed picture, "The Pilgrim," on view at the Grand Central, West End Lyric and Capitol theaters, is a fine piece of work in these days of militant evangelism. While it is the richest comedy he has given to the public since "The Kid," it has been and will continue to be popular because the comedian throughout the action wears the garb of a minister of the gospel.

He burlesques a church service and a sermon and makes fun of a small-town congregation in a way that suggests nonreverence, if not outright irreverence. It has been said in defense, after the censoring of the picture in several states, that Chaplin does not burlesque a minister, but an escaped convict who disguises himself in the minister's clothes. For subtlety this approaches the Einstein theory.

The disclosure that the leading deacon of the church has a bottle of whiskey in his pocket harks back to the Host comedy days, as does the picking of ungainly and unlovely types for the church congregation.

Early in the action the plot is changed into the waste basket and after that, the film is a succession of Chaplin comedies.

Dinky Dean, a precocious boy actor, supplies much of the fun. Two musical numbers, a duet and a sentimental serving of a derby hat in the guise of a pudding and the efforts of the Sheriff to permit the masquerading convict to escape into Mexico. Sid Chaplin, a Scotch lassie, a Hollywood vampire and a squaw are well received that she is forced to fall back upon her serious song, "My Man, and her other 'Follies' song, 'Second Hand Rose'."

Sandwiched in between a jazz orchestra and an acrobatic act, the strong voice of Chief Capoulcan brings relief with the comedy song "Carmen," the Gypsy love-song from "The Fortune Teller" and "Mandalay."

Davidson's one-act drama, "Circumstantial Evidence," furnishes a deep behind the scenes, while a jury is deliberating on the evidence in a murder trial. What appears to be a hopeless deadlock of 11 to 1 for conviction is finally broken by the startling disclosure that the single juror holding out for acquittal is the real murderer.

Pert and Sue Kelton, sisters, are top topplers yet, but they are headed for that goal. The comedy and dancing of Pert and the cornet solos of Sue score one of the hits of the bill. Page, Hack and Mack do some bare-kicking hand balancing stunts, the Peacock orchestra from Pasadena Palace furnishes jazz and the Ruth Howell duo closes the show with aerial acrobatics, featuring a sensational "toe-to-toe" catch by Miss Howell.

There is a "Snub" Pollard comedy which contains some new and startling contributions to the elaborate technique of evil male manners. A young woman with a pleasing voice of considerable range offers a few classical airs.

Vera Gordon as a Mother-in-Law.
"Your Best Friend," featured at the Liberty Theater, gives Vera Gordon another excellent chance to portray one of those mother roles which have made her famous. In this instance she also tries her hand at successfully in portraying a mother-in-law.

The particular mother is happy in her Harlem flat until her son, Harry, marries a girl of the flapper type. The girl also has a mother, a vain and extravagant creature who snubs her daughter's mother-in-law, while not hesitating to live luxuriously on her bounty.

Miss Gordon gives a fine characterization of the thrifty housewife who finds herself in strange and repellent surroundings when she goes to make her home with her son and his bride. She sees her money being

WOODWARD PLAYERS IN "TURN TO THE RIGHT"
Roles Handled so Well There is Little to Choose in Playing of Eight or Nine Members.
When Joe Bascom, late of Sing Sing, takes the first "Turn to the Right" in the comedy of that name which is being presented at the Empress Theater this week, it takes him to the kitchen door of his old mother, who is on the verge of being dispossessed by Deacon Tillinghew, village Shylock and pillar of the church. Since Joe has been "in business" in the city for the last year, it's then naturally up to him to pay off all the debts, save the farm and marry the deacon's daughter. How he does it with no funds except what is left of the $10 given him at the prison door might be expected to furnish three hours of diverting entertainment, and the situation, in the hands of the Woodward Players, do just that.

Failure hovers perilously near at times, but just when success seems hopeless, who should drift in but Gilly and Mugsy, two of Joe's "bustle" acquaintances—a burglar and a pickpocket. Their talent at making money change locations with such lightning-like rapidity as to serve several purposes at once meets the emergency until all debts can be wiped out by methods less regular. At the same time the moral regeneration of the former convicts is brought about through a little motherly kindness.

Roles are distributed this week with such equity and handled with such ability that there is little to choose in the playing of some eight or nine members. John Warner has the part of Joe, Hazel Whitmore is the Deacon's daughter, and J. Raymond Brown is the pillar of the church. George Dean Borup and Bobby Reed as Gilly and Mugsy, convulsed the audience with their social and business endeavors. Laura Lovett is Joe's attractive sister, and Caroline Morrison is burglar and mother. Virginia Springer, late

FANNY BRICE FEATURED IN BILL AT ORPHEUM
The featured entertainer at the Orpheum, Fannie Brice, singing comedienne, has close competition in Capoulcan, the Indian paritane, and John Davidson, a recent moving picture star. Miss Brice, however, easily carries away first honors in the matter of applause. Her Yiddish interpretation of a Scotch lassie, a Hollywood vampire and a squaw are well received that she is forced to fall back upon her serious song, "My Man, and her other 'Follies' song, 'Second Hand Rose'."

ing spent on hilarious parties and expensive dinners at which her presence is barely tolerated. She is shelved and flouted until she can stand it no longer. Then she rises to the full height of motherly dignity and declares herself in no uncertain terms. Incidentally she reforms her some biddy body.

On the bill also is a revival of the Fox production of "Les Miserables," with William Farnum in the leading role.

When Father Was the Custodian.
The feature on the Delmonte's bill is "The Forgotten Law," with Milton Sills, Jack Mulhall and Cleo Ridgely in the leading roles. This is a picturization of Caroline Abbott Stanley's novel, "A Modern Madonna."

The purposes of the story the action goes back to a time when under the law the father was assumed to be its custodian and was empowered to make provisions for the child's care, even to the extent of taking it from its mother and putting it in other hands.

In this instance the father dies and it is found that under the provisions of the will his son is to be cared for by the father's relatives. In the minds of these relatives there is a deep-seated prejudice against the child's mother and through the greater part of the film it is mother is shown in a desperate effort to break down this prejudice. The picture is of a distinctly emotional type and is well done by a competent cast.

The musical feature is being by the Harmonious Trio.

"Fabiola" yesterday went into its second week at the Shubert-Jefferson and "Driven" remains over for the week at the Rivoli.

WOODWARD PLAYERS IN "TURN TO THE RIGHT"

Roles Handled so Well There is Little to Choose in Playing of Eight or Nine Members.

When Joe Bascom, late of Sing Sing, takes the first "Turn to the Right" in the comedy of that name which is being presented at the Empress Theater this week, it takes him to the kitchen door of his old mother, who is on the verge of being dispossessed by Deacon Tillinghew, village Shylock and pillar of the church. Since Joe has been "in business" in the city for the last year, it's then naturally up to him to pay off all the debts, save the farm and marry the deacon's daughter. How he does it with no funds except what is left of the $10 given him at the prison door might be expected to furnish three hours of diverting entertainment, and the situation, in the hands of the Woodward Players, do just that.

Failure hovers perilously near at times, but just when success seems hopeless, who should drift in but Gilly and Mugsy, two of Joe's "bustle" acquaintances—a burglar and a pickpocket. Their talent at making money change locations with such lightning-like rapidity as to serve several purposes at once meets the emergency until all debts can be wiped out by methods less regular. At the same time the moral regeneration of the former convicts is brought about through a little motherly kindness.

Roles are distributed this week with such equity and handled with such ability that there is little to choose in the playing of some eight or nine members. John Warner has the part of Joe, Hazel Whitmore is the Deacon's daughter, and J. Raymond Brown is the pillar of the church. George Dean Borup and Bobby Reed as Gilly and Mugsy, convulsed the audience with their social and business endeavors. Laura Lovett is Joe's attractive sister, and Caroline Morrison is burglar and mother. Virginia Springer, late

The featured entertainer at the Orpheum, Fannie Brice, singing comedienne, has close competition in Capoulcan, the Indian paritane, and John Davidson, a recent moving picture star. Miss Brice, however, easily carries away first honors in the matter of applause. Her Yiddish interpretation of a Scotch lassie, a Hollywood vampire and a squaw are well received that she is forced to fall back upon her serious song, "My Man, and her other 'Follies' song, 'Second Hand Rose'."

Sandwiched in between a jazz orchestra and an acrobatic act, the strong voice of Chief Capoulcan brings relief with the comedy song "Carmen," the Gypsy love-song from "The Fortune Teller" and "Mandalay."

Davidson's one-act drama, "Circumstantial Evidence," furnishes a deep behind the scenes, while a jury is deliberating on the evidence in a murder trial. What appears to be a hopeless deadlock of 11 to 1 for conviction is finally broken by the startling disclosure that the single juror holding out for acquittal is the real murderer.

Pert and Sue Kelton, sisters, are top topplers yet, but they are headed for that goal. The comedy and dancing of Pert and the cornet solos of Sue score one of the hits of the bill. Page, Hack and Mack do some bare-kicking hand balancing stunts, the Peacock orchestra from Pasadena Palace furnishes jazz and the Ruth Howell duo closes the show with aerial acrobatics, featuring a sensational "toe-to-toe" catch by Miss Howell.

There is a "Snub" Pollard comedy which contains some new and startling contributions to the elaborate technique of evil male manners. A young woman with a pleasing voice of considerable range offers a few classical airs.

The Cards Were in Pretty Good Trim but the Browns Seemed to Think They Needed Further Trimming

Pruett's Baffling Fadeaway and Browns' Powerful Punch Humble Cards in Second Spring Game, 11-3

Twenty-Two Thousand Spectators See Fohlmen Pound Rickey's Hurlers—Cedric Durst Celebrates Day by Hitting a Home Run and Playing Brilliantly in Field.

By Joseph F. Holland.

A jury of 22,000 fans viewed the efforts of the Sisterless Browns in the final game of the spring series, with the Cardinals yesterday at Sportsman's Park, and after nine innings of deliberation returned a verdict that the Fohlmen, shattered confidence and all, are ready for the Detroit Tigers on opening day. Any team whose pitching can hold the powerful Cardinal attack to three runs in two games will win games. So will a club which can score 14 runs in 17 innings.

The 11-to-3 victory yesterday was another tribute to the power of the roadways of Hubert Pruet, the little left-handed boy from Missouri University. Pruet gave six hits and three of them entered the box score in one inning, the fifth. However, the lefty and Hubert himself, who admitted that the walloping Cardinals banged the ball straight at Brown fielders on several occasions. The two young men who drew the critical consideration of the jury were Gene Robertson at third and Cedric Durst at first. Durst stepped up to the plate in the second inning and whistled a lifeline fast ball into the right field seats for a home run. After that it was comparatively easy to get him to make four fruitless trips to the plate.

Durst has a pleasant afternoon. Durst drove was made at the expense of Jesse Haines, who was walloped for 10 hits and eight runs in less than four full innings. Jesse was succeeded by Wilmington, who dominated himself in proper big league fashion until the sixth, when Lester Sell took over the assignment. Sell held the Browns to five hits and two runs in four innings. One of the hits was Kenny Williams' home-run drive into Grand boulevard with Gerber on base in the sixth.

Durst contributed one fielding play which concluded the jury that he is able to field his position with necessary ability. In the sixth inning, with one out, Pruet led the range on the plate and walked Stock and Jack Smith. Pruet hit to Robertson, who chanced Stock back to second when he had stepped on third for a force out. Finally he made a hurried toss to Durst which was high and off the bag. Cedric threw up his gloved hand for a throw. He slipped backhand catch and then rifled the ball straight into Gerber's hands at third to catch Stock. It saved a dangerous situation and enabled Will-

Robertson was a bit flustered on that one particular play, but he handled his other chances faultlessly and made two clean hits. The season he drew from his fruitless chase of Stock will pay high dividends in contributing to greater steadiness. Eliminating this play, the Browns played smoothly and their attack broke down upon Haines from the opening inning until it forced his retirement. Meanwhile, the little left-handed boy was turning the Cardinals back. He pitched although it was fortunate that Brown fielders stood in the path of real wallops at times.

Tobin and Gerber Help "Shucks" Pruet Turn Back Hornsby Without a Swat

The duel between Pruet and Hornsby was about even up, although the home run king failed to get a hit. The first time up the little southpaw fanned him on three pitches and Hornsby took his long loops at the last two. The king's second appearance resulted in a pass and the third time up he sent Tobin to the edge of the crowd in right center for a sliding catch of his long liner. Then in the eighth, Hornsby whipped a smashing grounder that Walter Gerber stepped and converted into an out. Pruet's control in the middle of the game. In the first three innings he gave only one hit and finished up with one hit in the last four. In the fourth and fifth he gave four hits. It was hardly a day for baseball, but the jury had to pass upon the two machines. The Cardinals departed at 9 o'clock tonight for Cincinnati after four games with the Reds, the Browns open with the Tigers, who have the honor of having won

WRAY'S COLUMN

Waiting for the Bell.

ENTRIES in the major league pennant races are restlessly branching at the post today awaiting the "play ball" signal. Clairvoyants are seeing visions of the finish, but as many of them see entirely different, the layman's conclusion is that the contest in both leagues is to be close.

1. New York Giants.
2. Cincinnati Reds.
3. Pittsburgh Pirates.
4. St. Louis Cardinals.
5. Brooklyn Dodgers.
6. Chicago Cubs.
7. Boston Braves.
8. Philadelphia.

But McGraw will have his troubles. The game's Napoleon will have to prove himself one this year. The team has three bad actors on its roster, two of them pitchers. It has also some waning stars.

On the other hand, the Reds, the Pirates and the Cardinals all have been stiffly reinforced and improved. The Giants will need something more than "Choke 'em, Charlie" methods to get through.

It would be no surprise to learn that any of the other teams named above as first-division favorites had won the pennant when the final contest has been completed. The Cubs, minus Hollocher and otherwise weakened, are regarded as feeblest than the Dodgers because of the Brooklyn pitching staff. However, the Brooklyn club is also greatly weakened by losses and age and by the absence of a first baseman.

Apparently the Phillies are certain to move their effects into the cellar apartment for the season after the first of June.

Official Who Has Known Jess 10 Years Puts O K on Big Fellow After Inspection.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 16.—Ed Cochran, sports editor of the Journal-Post and a referee of note, yesterday gave Jess Willard the official "once over" at the latter's training camp in Excelsior Springs and then put the O K on Jess.

He saw Willard go through his workouts on two occasions, saw him box and talked with him "beforewards." Of the former champion he said:

"It is without hesitation that I place the stamp of approval on the new Jess Willard. Knowing him for more than 10 years, in varied stages of his career, I cannot recall ever having seen him display as much earnestness, pep and fighting spirit as he is showing during these days of training."

"It is the second time I have observed him closely, so I am not taking today as my standard. It is my candid belief, never having seen Johnson in action, that he will take a man as good as Jack Dempsey to defeat the former champion, in his present fine physical and mental state."

NATIONAL LEAGUE FACES EXCELLENCE PROSPECTS FOR 1923, SAYS HEYDLER

NEW YORK, April 16.—National League baseball teams never were in better condition to start the diamond race than this year, John A. Heydler, president of the senior circuit, declared yesterday to the Associated Press commenting upon the start of the season on Tuesday. All indications point to one of the league's most successful seasons, he added.

The National League on Tuesday last began its season with a new lease on life, Heydler said. "Through the two-time world's series victories of the Giants, our organization has been reinvigorated, playing prestige and keen interest will center in the fight the seven other clubs will take to displace the champs."

"Changes have been made in the control of clubs in the National League circuit which brought memories of a pleasant time in baseball in general, and more welcome news was heard during the winter than that, Matty was back in the game at the start of the season, and the appointment of Arthur Fletcher as manager of the Philadelphia club was a recognition of a single player's value to the league."

When Sam Hays, Shawkey, Bush and Jones pitching to their best form, there is nothing in the race to stop New York, even though the team does require four hits to make a run.

U. S. SOCCER CHAMPIONS FORCED TO LIMIT TO DEFEAT THE WANDERERS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, April 16.—Barely over-coming stubborn resistance on the part of Brooklyn Wanderers in the American Soccer League match at Hawthorne Field, Brooklyn, the national champions of the Paterson Soccer Club, won by a score of 2 goals to 1, gained 2 points in the league standing yesterday. Honors in the first half were equally divided except that the champions broke through for one goal after 25 minutes of play, when McGuire took Duggan's pass and reached the Wanderers net.

After change of ends, the Wanderers did much of the pressing, getting three corners, but without substantial return. Lawless came within an ace of equalizing with a high shot, but Renszli stopped, but, bending backward, appeared to hold the ball over the line. Referee Cunningham was not in a position at the time to judge and gave the benefit of the doubt to the defending side.

KEARNS IN RETORT TO ATTACK BY LEGION

By the Associated Press.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 16.—Denial that Jack Dempsey, heavyweight boxing champion, had received offers from any representative of the Montana American Legion for a championship bout to be held at Shelby, Mont., on July 4, was made by Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, upon his arrival here from the East yesterday.

Kearns said the statement issued by the Executive Committee of the Montana department of the American Legion Saturday, impressed him merely as a means to obtain cheap publicity which would reflect upon Jack Dempsey.

Injuries May Prevent Myers and Flack From Making First Trip

Rickeymen Depart Tonight for Cincinnati to Open Four-Game Series Which Will Inaugurate the National League Season.

By Herman Wecke,

When the Cardinals depart for Cincinnati tonight to open the National League season against the Reds tomorrow, all the players who will be members of the club during the coming campaign will be taken along, with the possible exception of Max Flack and Hy Myers, outfielders. This was the announcement this morning from Manager Rickey.

Flack will be unable to make the trip because of a leg injury. It is probable that the little outfielder will go to the hospital within the next few days and that the injured member will be placed in a cast. Myers strained a tendon in his thigh in yesterday's tilt with the Browns and will therefore be in no condition for the opening.

Johnny Lavan, the little shortstop who has been unable to play for more than a week because of an injured left shoulder, will be along on the afternoon trip, but he will hardly be capable of playing in any of the early battles. This means that Howard Freigan, the 20-year-old Ohio Wesleyan youth, who has been a sensation in the early games, will be at shortstop for the Rickeymen.

The injury to two of his regular outfielders is a tough blow to Rickey. First, Flack went out when he was going "great guns." And then Hy Myers, the outfielder obtained from the Brooklyn Dodgers, Myers was just rounding to his top form.

Heine Mueller's Chance.

As a result of this, Rickey will be forced to open the season with a makeshift outfield. As Pete Donohue, a right hander, is scheduled to pitch the opening tilt, he will use Rickey will alternate a doubt, use Dyer in left. Mueller, because he knows he can hit right handers, will be without a doubt get the call. He is in good shape.

Therefore, against right-handers, the club will not be weakened greatly, as regards the outfield. It is difficult when a southpaw is on duty for the position. This will force Rickey to use Leslie Mann, who is not yet in shape, in center, and Joe Schultz in right. Had Flack been able to play, there would have been no occasion to alternate in right, as the former Cub hit southpaws as well as right-handers. Myers also can hit both styles of hurling.

Manager Rickey announced this morning that Big Jeff Pfeffer would be the pitcher of the start of the string, as he did not take up the position of manager in 1922 until the season was well on.

With the exception of Pittsburgh, who clubs were favored by phenomenally fine training conditions and as far as the team does in the National League never were in better shape to start in competition.

Cardinal Batting Order.

When the Cardinals face the Reds tomorrow, it will be with the following batting order: Blades, left field; Smith, center; Hornsby, second base; Bottomley, first base; Stock, third base; Mueller, right field; Freitag, shortstop; Clemens, catcher, and Pfeffer, pitcher.

Against a left-hander, Mann will bat in second position and Schultz in sixth. So Rickey will not be forced to shift his new battle front, instead of fourth this time in place in.

The Cardinals who will be taken along on the trip are as follows: Pitchers: Pfeffer, Sherdel, North, Dock, Tony, Haines, Perretta, Barfoot, North, Wilmington, Sell and Stuart.

Catchers: Clemens, Ainsmith, McCurdy.

Infielders: Bottomley, Hornsby, Stock, Freitag, Lavan, Gainer.

Outfielders: Blades, Smith, Mueller, Mann, Schultz, Dyer.

Facing the Reds in the opener, the Cardinals will oppose an aggregation made up of the same players Moran had in 1922 when the outfit finished in second place. Only one trade was made by the officials of the team during the winter, that one bringing Rube Benton, the southpaw, to the club from St. Paul. Benton is by no means a youngster, but he is expected to strengthen the Cincinnati pitching staff.

In a statement today at Cincinnati, Manager Moran said that the team would fight to win as many games as possible, but that he was not predicting a pennant.

'Kamm Gives Us Pennant Chance,' Says Ed Collins

"We Were Just a Good Ball Club Before He Joined Us," Declares White Sox Captain.

By Davis J. Walsh.

NEW YORK, April 16.—According to Eddie Collins, an authority on the subject—or the Horsehoe Curve—a straightaway—while Kamm was such an amazing resemblance to the star third baseman that he (Collins) is unable to tell the difference.

Kamm is everything the Browns have made him and more, in the opinion of Eddie. "He is a great ballplayer," Collins declared before the White Sox left for the west to get ready for the opening of the American League season. "I do not know what else I can say about him that will state the case more clearly. Kamm does everything well."

A Sincere Statement.

This was not the format of one ballplayer's feelings, but another when speaking for publication. Sincerity and conviction were evident in Collins' words. He made the statement in the manner of one who concedes that Harding is President.

"We were just a good ball club before Kamm joined us," he added. "Now I think we have a chance to be the pennant." In his carefully worded statement, Kamm has stepped into a third base and made plays that a great infielder could make, and his hitting has been hard and true. No false motions or tricks come in just gathers in the ball from position and his wonderful arm has the rest."

SISLER SAID TO HAVE UNDERGONE OPERATION

The rumor operation on George Sisler, which was set for Friday of last week, was performed on that day.

The report, according to a report from a reliable source today, is that Sisler would be unable to play before June 1.

The report could not be confirmed either by Sisler or the specialist attending him. Sisler was not seen at his home, and the specialist declined to discuss the case.

A specialist who has had charge of the case declined to confirm or deny the report that the operation had been performed. He said, however, that "Sisler was doing nicely."

NEW DENTAL TECHNIC AIMS TO SAVE NERVES

Dr. J. K. Burgess, in Charge of Clinic, Thus Explains Result of Broadened Training.

Dentists are realizing more and more that teeth have a function as a part of the body and are treating them with greater regard to the effect dental diseases may have on general health.

Dr. J. K. Burgess of Pittsburg, who conducts a clinic at the fifty-eighth meeting of the State Dental Association meeting at Hotel Statler, thus summed up the trend in dental practice today to a reporter.

Members of his profession, Dr. Burgess said, are turning their attention to the study of the whole body. The dental curriculum is broadening, and many dentists take a degree in medicine as further equipment for dentistry.

The first result of this point of view is care to preserve the live pulp of a tooth—the part which contains the nerve. A few years ago the first thing a dentist did to a bad tooth was to kill the nerve. It was found that the dead pulp was the seat of infections, which by absorption into the blood were transmitted into other parts of the body. Rheumatism might develop in a weak knee through absorption from an infected tooth.

Greater Attention to Surgery.

"A dental conscience has been developed which impels greater caution in surgery," said Dr. Burgess. "In other words, the dentist exercises extraordinary care not to destroy any healthy tissue or any tissue which may restore itself. If you had something wrong with a toe, and a surgeon amputated your foot, whatever ailed your toe undeniably would be done for, but so would the use of your foot."

Another consideration in his specialty, bridge work, he said, is art. The importance of teeth to appearance has been recognized. Engineering and workmanship also enter for progress in understanding the healthy and unhealthy influences of teeth on the body has been met by progress in the technique of preserving or restoring dental health. The dentist uses engineering to place his artificial structures on strong bases and workmanship to make his structures strong.

HOW TO UNDERSTAND YOUR HUSBAND

By Winifred Harper Cooley

(Copyright, 1923.)

When He's Inefficient and Slow.

BELIEVE me, I'd like to tie up to one of those Human Dynamos," remarked Genevieve, referring to our recent description of a Hustling Husband. "They may be wearing on the nerves, but you feel as if they were GETTING SOMEWHERE! No Hoggie would lose out in a race with a snail, and his movements are not visible to the naked eye. I feel as if I were pushing an elephant upstairs an inch at a time."

"Yes, can you beat it? I have a sister who promised to obey one of those ovals. Naturally, she is a bit speedy and aggressive. Well, a tradition says that men ought to take the lead, and so she tries to act as if he had some initiative and was planning things. But it nearly drives her insane to sit tight and be the Power behind the Throne when the monarch is a dummy!" Thus spoke two from the ranks of Wedded Women.

Some husbands are born inefficient. If they try to sharpen a pencil or open a can, they bungle it. They never stop a street car till it has gone a block or two beyond the proper corner—several blocks, if it is raining.

We know a bride who was so disillusioned she almost wept when her new lord and master got the railroad ticket wrong, failed to have proper reservations at the hotel and made a fiasco with the baggage.

If she had discovered a love letter in his pocket, her relatives would have pitied her and upbraided him for a second, but these "trivial" faults did not impress them as vital—until they had to live in the same house with him! One sister said she had seen him take the Best Cure so long that she went to the circus to witness quick movements, and she contemplated marrying a bareback rider.

It may be exhausting to be tied to a husband who is a Human Dynamo, bent on doing the Dance of Death.

The Perfect Understanding of Farmer Brown's Boy

By Thornton W. Burgess

Read the understanding heart
That seeks to take another's part

FOR once in his life Johnny Chuck was thoroughly glad to see Farmer Brown's Boy approaching. Yes, sir, he was glad. He hadn't the least bit of fear. You see, Farmer Brown's Boy had led Bower the Hound away from the foot of that tree in which Johnny had been a prisoner, and so Johnny knew that Farmer Brown's Boy was a friend he could count on. The only thing that worried Johnny was the thought that perhaps Farmer Brown's Boy might not come away over to that tree again.

So Johnny watched anxiously as Farmer Brown's Boy came down the Long Lane. His heart leaped with joy as Farmer Brown's Boy turned and headed straight toward him. Johnny looked down at Reddy Fox curled up in the bushes and almost grinned as he thought of the surprise that was awaiting Reddy Fox. You see, from where he was Reddy couldn't see Farmer Brown's Boy.

Now, Farmer Brown's Boy hadn't intended to go over to that tree. He had planned to go somewhere else. But when he reached the end of the Long Lane he looked over to that tree in which he had found Johnny Chuck that morning. Of course, he hadn't the slightest idea that Johnny was still in the tree. At first he merely glanced over there rather carelessly. Then he stopped and looked long and hard. It was quite a distance and he couldn't see clearly, but it looked very much as if there was a brown mass in the very same crotch in which he had left Johnny Chuck.

"It can't be that Johnny Chuck is still up in that tree," muttered Farmer Brown's Boy. "It must be that someone else is up there. I believe I'll go that way and have a look." The nearer he drew the more puzzled he became. "It certainly looks like Johnny Chuck," he kept saying to himself. "It certainly looks like looked to walk so as to make very little noise. He was almost up to that tree before Reddy Fox suspected that he was near. Then a tiny twig snapped under one of his feet and instantly Reddy Fox pricked up his ears and jumped to his feet. Reddy was so surprised that for a second or two he stood motionless, staring at Farmer Brown's Boy. Then he whistled and was off like a red streak. The instant he moved Farmer Brown's Boy saw him.

"So that's it!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy, as he looked up at Johnny Chuck. "So that's it! That red mass came along before you had a chance to get down this morning and has kept you up there ever since. My goodness, I must be tired! I guess it is a good thing I have come along this way. Reddy ought to have kept you there until you tumbled out of the tree. I know just how you feel. Now, I'm going over to sit down on that stump and wait a little while until there is any wisdom at all in that

FASHION NEWS NOTES

THE CHOKER NECKLACE in its original form has been improved upon. Today the Parisienne wears two choker necklaces. One of them must be of pearls as big as marbles. The other may be of pearls, but is usually of some other kind of gems.

NILE GREEN is one of the shades which has come into popularity along with the other greens so much favored this season. Lingerie of Nile green is the latest fad, the hems being invariably decorated with bands of Egyptian figures and symbols.

BRACELETS are a bit hard to distinguish from necklaces, now that necklaces are shorter than they have been. The latest bracelet is a thin twist of jewels or of platinum with a pendant. It is meant to be wound several times around the wrist.

SHOES are among the most colorful items of dress at the moment. Along Fifth avenue, inside the shops and outside, you may see sandals of daffodil yellow and of orchid as well as blue, green and crimson. One type of shoe has buckles on which the head of Tutankhamen is outlined in jewels.

THE BRIGHTEST PURPLE HAT vies in smartness today with the hat of bright green and bright red. It is chic to combine several shades of purple on one hat and to face it with purple of the reddish, wine-like sort that casts a becoming glow on the face.

WEIST BAGS shown in New York are very demure at first glance. Of fine leather or grog grain silk, they come in black or dark blue. But at the side there is an accordion-plaited set of scarlet or jade which shows brilliantly as the bag swings.

WORDS OF WISE MEN

Little said is soonest heard.

Make haste to live and consider each day a new life.

It is temperament far more than ideas that makes a man.

Nothing is of worth but truth, before which all men are equal.

In whose heart there is no song, To him the miles are many and long.

Circumstances need not make the man. The wise man makes the circumstances.

We seldom find people ungrateful as long as we are in a position to render them service.

A disposition to preserve and an ability to improve, taken together, is a fine standard for a statesman.

It often happens that he who gathered much has nothing over, and he who gathered little has no lack.

Use the talent that you possess. The woods would be very silent were no birds to sing but those that sing best.

A man who gives his children habits of industry provides for them better than by giving them a fortune.

There is a mixed good in human affairs: the best principles, if pushed to excess, may degenerate into fatal vices.

True happiness is of a retired nature, and an enemy to pomp and noise. It arises from the enjoyment of one's self and from the friendship and conversation of a few select companions.

Fine sense and exalted sense are nearly so useful as common sense—there are 40 men of wit for one man of good sense.

The happiest period in life frequently is middle age, when the passions of youth are cooled, and the infirmities of age not yet begun.

Observe carefully what displeases or pleases you in others and be persuaded that, in general, the same things will please or displease them in you.

Many little heads of yours you will take this chance to get down.

So Farmer Brown's Boy went over to the stone wall some little distance away and sat down. He took pains to go far enough to make Johnny Chuck feel that he was free to come down. He watched Johnny look anxiously this way and that way and he smiled, for he understood just what Johnny was thinking.

M'LORD O' THE WHITE ROAD

By CEDRIC FRASER

There was a click—the ring of steel upon steel—the quick shuffling of riding boots upon the oaken floor—the clink, clink of spurs—rasping foils—and the two men were at bay.

And the face of one before the fight was as the face of the other. But now M'lord's visage was contorted with rage beyond all recognition. A diabolical gleam was in his eyes—his brows knitted fiercely—his breath, quick, eager pants. His left hand twitched and clenched and started open again. He was a man on murder bent.

But the farmer—he fought with a smile upon his lips (though withal it was a grim one), his head high, his hat—the tall, furry and unkempt hat—held lightly and gracefully in his left hand.

'Twas as if he played with buttoned foils, in gentle practice bout.

Now M'lord presses the attack, thrusting viciously and cunningly, playing for an opening and darting eagerly into it, but always to be out-matched in the nick of time. Now he is on guard, fighting fiercely and skillfully against the bewildering swiftness of the other man's attack.

Then once more the farmer fencer falls back, and his smile seems broader. Seeing this, Anderley becomes so maddened he well might neglect his skill, and beats heavily, brutally, and almost irresistibly, against the whirling steel which, shimmering in the candle light, seems as a great circular shield in front of John Shale's face.

But through that barrier of steel these eyes now twinkle merrily, and, observing this, grim despair falls upon the face of Anderley, for full well he knows that the merriment in these eyes bespeaks the confidence of this ill-bred farmer to lay low "one of England's greatest blades."

Peter, standing stolidly by the door, ready to prevent the landlord from intervening, should he feel so disposed, realized, almost as soon as M'lord himself, that his master was a beaten man.

As he looked at the wonderful exhibition of sword play given by the farmer, he found himself inspired with unwilling admiration, and 'twas with greatest difficulty that he prevented himself from more than one occasion from crying out in approval at some particularly brilliant piece of fencing.

'Shale was still defending himself easily and confidently, turning aside the frantic attacks of M'lord with as little concern as he would divert the untutored thrusts of a bot-headed schoolboy.

Suddenly, the landlord thrust open the door from the back rooms and rushed in, full of excitement. When he realized what was taking place, he lifted up his hands with a wall of apprehension.

"In God's name, cease, gentlemen!" he cried. "Consider what I am to do with one of you dead upon my hands!"

He danced around the fighters in a paroxysm of distress.

"Stand back, host," called Shale, "else 'tis you who will be dead upon our hands!" But the frantic man paid no attention to him.

Then Peter thrust his long, strong arm out and seized him by the scruff of the neck.

"Zooksers, man, would it have thyself transfixed upon a yard of steel!" he shouted, thrusting him back against the wall.

Joe struggled in vain, and there he was held firmly while he wrung his fat hands in despair, cursing John Shale with every oath he considered could safely be used in the presence of quality. Being held in check by M'lord's retainer, he deemed it wise to make it plain that 'twas on the farmer he did rain his curses.

The sweat was standing out on Anderley's brow now—but it was cold sweat. He fought as he had never fought before, pressing attack upon attack, faint upon faint, and thrust upon thrust, but never once did he penetrate that steel barrier or turn aside the purpose of that sure blade.

And the farmer was as cool as ever—as unperturbed as when he lay asleep and unnoticed upon the wooden window seat.

Suddenly, M'lord thought he saw an opening. It was a wonderful chance, for Shale's sword for a second was down and his body unguarded.

Like a flash the keen-pointed rapier leapt straight at the farmer's heart, driven with all the viciousness of a strong man's strength behind it. Peter gave a hoarse cry.

The landlord shut his eyes with a quick gasp of horror.

Next instant M'lord had stumbled forward irresistibly. Like a streak of lightning Shale's wrist had risen. His blade had flashed, and the other's rapier had passed harmlessly under his left arm.

Anderley, overcome by the force of his own thrust, fell forward a step, and in that instant he felt his weapon seized in a firm grasp and the pointed steel of the farmer's sword glittered within an inch of his white throat.

'And so they stood for a full 10 seconds.

At last M'lord raised his head high with proud mien.

"Strike!" he gasped. "Strike hard and true!"

But still with that soft smile upon his lips, Shale lowered his sword and slowly and silently replaced it in its scabbard.

M'lord stared at him in bewilderment.

The farmer turned to the table whereon the glasses of wine still stood, and, grasping that which had been his, he raised it aloft.

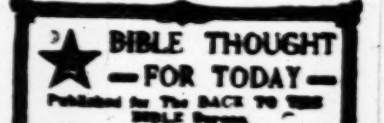

"M'lord, I drink to thee and to the future happiness. Methinks I have the right now."

Wearily, Anderley dashed the sweat from his brow, and then bowed gracefully in acknowledgment of the toast. This done, he crossed to the table, and in his turn raised his glass. 'Twas harder to admit defeat like this than face an honest death.

"To the greatest swordsman in England," he said, in a low voice.

And this time 'twas Farmer Shale who bowed gracefully—quite as gracefully as M'lord had done.

What About the Rockefeller "Spoonng" Inquiry?

The Post-Dispatch has received many letters of protest against the sending out of questionnaires by the Bureau of Social Hygiene of New York to women asking personal questions regarding their courtship days. This bureau was established by John D. Rockefeller Jr. Readers of the Women's Page are invited to discuss this interesting question in these columns. All letters should be brief and written on one side of the paper only

Her Experience

To the Editor of the Women's Page:

I want to reply to "Maude," in regard to "Never Being Kissed."

Let me say that I am 35 years old and have been kissed many, many times, but I did not win the man who seems to love me most dearly, and who seems to love my kisses, by spooning with him before we were married.

We were friends for a long time and engaged for a year, and we filled all the happy time we had together with reading, writing, music, good, wholesome drama, etc., mixed with plenty of gay, youthful fun, such as country hikes, tennis parties and all those things which are a part of young life.

I was deemed a pretty girl and subjected to all the temptations and nasty criticism that pretty and popular young girls are subjected to. To "him" and my dearest friends I was a beautiful girl, but beauty has a broad scope.

I was always quite popular with the boys, and before we became engaged I gave my future husband no particular opinion on my time and showed no more of the affectionate side of my life to him than to any of the other boys and young men whom people usually term admirers.

After we were engaged I always tried to show him a decided preference; but if he was out of the city he did not expect me to sit at home and "knit" while awaiting his return.

Boy friends who felt as though the race was run dropped off, and those who respected the relationship between me and my chosen one continued to be my chums and friends.

Emotion leads us into things, and the "thrill" that gets out of "spooning" is too mistaken for love. They are away by what they think is a for the lifelong love of one who are too often blind to all else desire to be in his arms and his kisses on their lips.

The man who turns away from when you do not spoon with him is not the man who wants you.

cause a real man wants to never lonesome.

We have been married three years, Dick, dear, my kisses of course, they are beautiful, but I know, but until I am as full of fun as ever, my God's own law, we want to course, many of our children, and I myself, we are have grown into greater things in all things, or that we are passed on to the younger, but of each other's opinions, we find pleasure in seeing things and faults. We must the things that we enjoyed, whether or not we enjoy the life. All these things come in life.

I want my girls to grow up to be admired for their character, their accomplishments, their good sense and diplomatic things found only in girls who are clean-hearted and who strive for suspension.

My husband is not jealous, and God knows I have had many temptations since I have been married, but he has trusted me, and I learned that the admiration of men was more to be depended upon than continued to seek my company; they found out I was not a flirt.

What You Should Do When You Get Soaking Wet

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator From New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

THIS is the time of year when it rains on occasions. You are bound to get wet once in a while. Some folks worry every time this happens, for fear they will take cold. The same folks are afraid of fresh air, and especially currents of air. They wear skull-caps and night-caps. They are scared if they feel a draft. They are afraid of wet feet. They think they must begin to snuffle and sneeze after the least exposure. I sometimes think this speedy effect is psychic, but it exists and must be considered.

Getting wet is a common experience. I do not approve of going out with the deliberate intention of getting wet, but clean water never hurt anybody. It really makes no difference whether it is taken internally or applied externally, either intentionally or inadvertently. No one need worry over a good wetting. There is nothing harmful about wet clothes. The danger comes from living in damp garments for hours, with consequent chilling of the body.

If you get wet, go on briskly with your work or walk. So long as you are exercising, so long as your heart is doing its full duty, you are just as safe as you would be in the surf or lake.

Everybody knows it is unpleasant and unsafe to stay too long in the water. Likewise, if you are in wet clothes too long, you get the same physical ill-effects.

There must be proper reaction after such exposure in order to ward off possible danger. Go home, rub yourself vigorously with a rough towel, clothe your body in dry garments, and you are just as safe and will be as invigorated as if you had had a dip in the surf at Atlantic City.

Make sure that your hair is thoroughly dry, and especially that your stockings are free from moisture. The extremities, for some reason or other, are more sensitive than the body. Don't stay indoors because it rains. Put on your rubbers and sally forth in raincoat or under your umbrella.

Do You Appraise Your Own Beauty Correctly?

By LUCREZIA BORI

HOW often do you stop to judge your personal appearance with the critical eye of a stranger? When you think this over, your answer will probably be "Never." You see yourself in the mirror from day to day as you arrange your hair and powder your nose, and see that your hat is on straight, but do you see with an observing eye?

Can you become detached enough to imagine that you are viewing your own physical exterior for the first time? This is what I mean by judging yourself with the critical eye of a stranger.

You know a stranger meeting you for the first time doesn't make allowances for untidy hair or untidy clothing or an unattractive complexion that results from lack of care.

The sum total of all these things is taken in at a glance by the stranger who is presented to you. If the sum total is particularly favorable, the instantaneous impression is what we call "above par," and all you have to do is to live up to it or build upon it, as the case may be.

If the impression is not favorable, it may take you some time to change the erroneous first impression that you have given.

Now, the woman who wishes to be her most charming self must always show the results of scrupulous grooming.

This seems a small thing to accomplish when you consider the great personal pride every woman has at heart, but really it is astounding how the woman who follows this advice stands out in a crowd.

She does so because comparatively few women have mastered the secret of always appearing at their best. While this desired effect is an accumulation of little things, it in itself is decidedly not a little thing.

Watch any passing throng for a few minutes. The faults in toilettes become obvious, not so much by their glaring qualities as by repetition.

Notice coiffures. You will see many women with a wisp of hair straggling at the back or an escaped lock dropping at the side. You'll welcome the woman who has every hair of her becoming coiffure in place.

When you turn your attention to complexions a fresh, well-cared-for one is a joy indeed. So many that you see in the passing throng show a disregard of the proper application of powder. It's either carelessly applied in huge dabs, or else it isn't applied at all, and a shiny nose is the result.

These examples prove what really little things go to make the well-groomed woman.

When they are of this kind, things that can be acquired by diligent attention and care, you must let your feminine pride come forth and help you acquire them. After all you are so much happier when your nails are well cared for and you know that your coiffure adds to your charm.

These small things go to make the sum total that spells beauty.

Of course, careful grooming doesn't stop here. These are merely obvious examples which I mention to bring to your mind the high spots that the stranger would be most likely to notice first. It's for you to find out the points on which you are most likely to be careless, and by careful grooming to make them your best points.

Then, too, the way you wear your clothes counts. Be sure they are always scrupulously clean, and don't forget to have your shoes neat and well-polished always.

The state of your shoes, it has been said, means much in its indication of your character. A run-down heel suggests a careless, slipshod disposition. Never let your heels reach this condition when a few minutes spent with the cobbler is all that stands between you and a foot that is neat and pleasant to look upon.

This may seem a bit separated from beauty, but I assure you it's most closely related. Unattractive feet can do much to spoil the effect of a pretty face, while well-groomed feet can make any ankle appear slimmer and more attractive.

Then, too, your hats count to a marked degree. Remember to use the critical eye of a stranger when picking out a new hat. Don't buy it because it looks attractive in the shop window. Put it on your head and examine it from all angles. Before you purchase it be sure it accentuates your beauty.

PEACH SURPRISE

THIS is a very novel frozen dessert and is delicious. Cut up sufficient drained canned peaches to make one pint and add one cupful of powdered sugar, the whites of three eggs, unbeaten, and half a cupful of thick cream. Turn all into the freezer and freeze slowly to a firm, smooth mass.

Hotels Feature Service So they welcomed these better cups

Hotels have long recognized the dangers lurking in the common drinking glass, and the inconvenience of devices intended to replace it. But now they have solved the perplexing problem.

Here are the reasons why hotels everywhere are installing BURT CUPS—the same reasons that make them best for office use; for stores, factories, theatres, clubs, and all public buildings.

The clever cone shape prevents accidental re-use, and fits naturally in the hand. Each cup is so perfectly made that the fine paper alone is water-tight.

Scientific study determined the exact amount of water desirable to drink—enough to quench the thirst, not enough to chill the stomach. Each BURT CUP holds the proper quantity—encouraging the frequent drinking recommended by doctors.

Be sure to try these dainty, immaculate cups.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB.

OBSTRUCTING THE HIGHWAY.

THERE is a corner in a Southern state, down near the Mississippi River, where formerly lynchings occurred more frequently than they do in these times. In the days before the rural free delivery system was adopted, Uncle Gip Thomas held the contract for delivering the mail in this neighborhood. So regular was he that the residents almost could set their clocks by him.

But one day he was nearly two hours late in reaching the end of the line, where there was a tiny cross-roads hamlet. Just as the citizens were forming a posse to set out in search of him, in fear that some mishap had befallen him, Uncle Gip ambled into view.

"What delayed you, Uncle Gip?" asked the Postmaster. "Did you happen to an accident or did an accident happen to you?"

"Nary one, or both," stated Uncle Gip. "But about 10 o'clock this morning, I crossed the creek. I come to where some of the boys had done left a feller hangin' right thar in the public road. Well, suh, my mare she got skeered and shied back, and I jes' natchally couldn't make her go past him noways, so finally I had to tear down a panel of rail fence and lead her through the gap and lay the fence back up again and go through the woods down into the hollow and ford the creek and then tear another gap in the fence before I could get back again on the turnpike—and that was what kept me so late." Uncle Gip paused a moment and then went on again in an aggrieved tone.

"Honest, boys, it does look to me like there oughter be a law against leavin' a feller hangin' in the public roads."

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., April 15.—
Sheriff J. R. Jones of Tallahassee made a personal profit of approximately $23 on each prisoner lease
this (Leon) County to the Putnam
Lumber Co., he testified today before the legislative committee investigating prison conditions in State as the outgrowth of the of Marion Tabert of North Dak.

It was in a camp of the Putnam
Co., in Dixie County, where Tabert died. Walter Higginbotham, a former whipping boy of the camp under indictment for first degree murder as a result of Tabert's death.

Sheriff Jones said before the committee for more than an hour it resumed its hearings today certified that between Aug. 15, and Dec. 31, 1932, he transferred the Putnam camp a total number 182 prisoners. He declared that the lumber company had made a contract with the Leon County Commissioners to lease prisoners and he had entered into an agreement with W. H. Fisher, superintendent of the lumber company, to take all prisoners convicted in this county to camp, for which he was to receive $23 a head.

Jones said that Fisher first offered him $15 for each prisoner, but told him that "other Sheriffs in State were receiving that much more." The Sheriff said that one to nine prisoners were reserved from here to lumber camps at a time. He said that it cost approximately $5 a man to make the trip but his fee for making the
and other fees brought him an compensation up to $23.

Officials Knew of Contract.
Jones was asked whether the contract he had with the lumber company was kept a secret from county officials. He declared that it was made in the presence of members of the county commission, saying "that I had the same as any other individual."

"If a prisoner after he had leaved out desired to pay his who would he pay it to?" Chief Stokes asked.

He would pay it to the Sheriff, Jones replied.

The body of Tabert was plac yesterday by Arthur Johnson, a former convict, to Assistant Attor

Johnson, sentenced to serve years on four charges of kidn prisoner to be taken to the of the Putnam Lumber Co.
